

After convict William Buckley's escape from a Victorian settlement near Geelong, he was discovered by the local Wathaurang people who thought this pale, 198cm giant carrying a spear was the ghost of one of their elders.

Buckley had arrived at Port Phillip from England in 1803 with about 300 soldiers, settlers and convicts after being sentenced to transportation for life. Before the Port Phillip and Sullivan Bay settlement was abandoned, Buckley escaped. He wandered alone for weeks around what's now known as Geelong and the Bellarine before he was befriended by the Wathaurong people.

Over the next 32 years Buckley lived with the Wathaurong, learnt their language and customs, married and had a daughter. In 1835 he finally emerged to meet Batman's colonising party and tried to work as an intermediary between settlers and aborigines, but felt he wasn't trusted by either.

SOME PLACES AROUND THE GEELONG REGION NOW CARRY BUCKLEY'S NAME, INCLUDING BUCKLEY FALLS ON THE BARWON RIVER.
